Problem Statement:

Many people who apply for credit cards often feel uncertain about whether their application will be approved or not. This uncertainty can lead to frustration, especially after facing rejections without knowing exactly why. Often, applicants don't fully understand how their personal details—like age, employment duration, ongoing loans, or EMI commitments—impact the bank's decision. This creates a gap between expectation and reality, making the whole process seem unpredictable.

Our system addresses this everyday concern by offering a quick and easy way for individuals to check the likelihood of their credit card approval before actually applying. By simply entering a few details like their name, age, number of days employed, EMIs paid, and current loan status, users receive a prediction that helps them gauge where they stand. While it doesn't offer financial advice or guarantee approval, it does give users clarity—helping them feel more informed and prepared when approaching the application process.

In doing so, we hope to remove the guesswork, reduce unnecessary rejections, and help customers approach credit card applications with greater confidence and peace of mind.

Example:

Problem Statement (PS)	I am (Customer)	I'm trying to	But	Because	Which makes me feel
PS-1	A salaried employee	apply for a credit card confidently	I'm unsure whether I'll get approved	I don't know how my personal and financial details affect approval chances	confused, anxious, and hesitant
PS-2	A young applicant	understand my eligibility before applying	there's no way to predict approval chances beforehand	banks don't clearly explain their approval criteria	frustrated and in the dark
PS-3	A loanpaying user	check if my current EMIs affect approval	the bank rejected me without a clear reason	I didn't know ongoing loans could impact my credit card eligibility	disappointed and discouraged from applying again
PS-4	A first-time applicant	know if I stand a chance	all I see is a form with no explanation or feedback	there's no immediate insight on eligibility during application	lost and unsure about proceeding
